Former Vice President and General Manager Seeks Back Salary

David Eccles, residing at present in Oregon, filed suit yesterday, against the Amalgamated Sugar company for $42,500 and interest from January 1, 1921, in the United States district court. Local officials of the sugar company said yesterday that they had as yet heard nothing of the suit.

The suit alleges that the plaintiff was employed by the company from July 1, 1915, until January 1, 1921, during which period he performed, among other regular duties, those of vice president, general manager and chairman of the executive board for the company. WEBER COLLEGE TO ARRANGE SOCIAL

The opening event on the calendar for the fall term of the Weber Normal college, will be the "get-together" social on Friday, September 1, to renew friendships between alumni, faculty, and friends of the college and welcome new students.

This event will be the first of its kind in the history of the school. It is expected that it will become a tradition in future years to bring together all the students of the school during the week preceding the opening of the school.

Committees are working hard to make the rally a huge success. Details of the programs and other events of the social will be announced later.

U. B. Thrifty says—

"You can buy opportunity if you have enough cents"

Modern farming methods embody more than the mere raising of grains.

The past decade has proven that diversified farming has many big advantages over the one-crop method of soil culture.

Chief among the paying branches of the industry is stock raising and dairying.

Utah needs more good milk stock and our farmer friends who already see the opportunity that a better dairy herd presents are to be congratulated on their foresight.

We are strong for any industry that will further our community's prosperity.

And stock raisers and dairy-men will do their share.

HOT LUNCHES FOR CHILDREN

County Schools to Continue This Policy During Coming Year

The health work, including the serving of "hot lunch," will be continued in the Weber county schools, according to an announcement made by Supt. R. A. Fowler today.

"It is about as important to have good health as it is to have good morals," Supt. Fowler said, "and both are essential to good citizenship."

With this idea in mind the county school officials are intending to devote a good deal of time to foster and improve the health habits of their pupils. The nurse's work last year more than justified the expenditure in the improved health conditions, according to the school authorities, and this work will be a part of the program again this year.

SERVE HOT SOUP

Among the important factors in better health conditions is the serving of a bowl of hot soup with the lunches of children who come to school long distances, and who bring only a few sandwiches, or a hastily prepared lunch from home. Last year the hot lunch was carried on successfully in North Ogden, Far West, Pleasant View, Riverdale, Huntsville, and a portion of the season at Hooper.

"Many testimonials have come in from both parents and teachers in praise of the benefits derived from the practice of serving one hot course in the cold weather to any or all students who stay and eat dinner at school," Supt. Fowler said. "The teachers report that better work in the afternoon is possible, as the children seem more contented from having a warm meal. The food digests better, and there is a decided improvement in the health and vitality of the child with noticeable gain in weight in most cases."

CANNING VEGETABLES

"The schools that have the equipment already are planning to conduct this lunch again. Local women in charge of the serving are canning tomatoes and other vegetables for the serving. The board of education furnishes the equipment and pays the woman who makes and serves the soup, but the undertaking could not be a success if the parents of the children did not support it both financially and by sympathetic response. The school girls render valuable assistance in serving the soup and taking turns in washing the dishes. This is done during the noon hour with little or no loss of school time. It is a splendid co-operative effort, since the women of the community interested in child welfare, the school people and the local women of the farm bureau all work together to make it a success. The soup is served for three cents a bowl and is made practically self-supporting, with the exception of the county school's expenditures, as listed above.

"Any school not equipped with the hot lunch utensils can obtain these by making application to the board of education. In order that the school people may be assured of this local co-operation, they require that a petition signed by a reasonable number of parents in any town be presented, asking that the hot lunch be given the school in that particular town. If this petition be in early enough to permit the dishes and equipment for cooking to be purchased, the hot lunch will be installed in that school the same year."

ARCHITECTS IN SESSION HERE

Poorly Constructed Buildings Held Liability to Community

The Utah chapter of the American Institute of Architects, held the regular monthly meeting at Pineview in Ogden canyon, last evening. Members from other parts of the state arrived by automobile early in the evening. After visiting several buildings in course of construction under the supervision of local architects, a "ride through" Ogden canyon at sunset brought forth many very favorable comments on the wonderful scenic beauty of the gorge.

The greater portion of the evening was devoted to a discussion of the better enforcement of building ordinances as a protection to the public safety, as well as making investments more secure and permanent.

Discussions were centered on the effect poorly constructed buildings have on a community.

"Poorly constructed buildings while they may not be actually unsafe," said Elmer F. Pierce, Ogden architect, in talking of the meeting, "will be practically worthless in the course of a few years. Proper enforcement of the building ordinances would eliminate many defects in construction which are concealed in the newly finished buildings, but which develop into glaring defects within a short time, and really becomes a liability to the community, instead of making our cities more beautiful and our investments more permanent."

"The law demands that architects must satisfactorily pass an examination and otherwise display evidence that they are properly qualified before they will be granted a certificate to practice their profession in the state. They must see that all ordinances are observed under penalty of losing their license, and buildings that are erected without the services of an architect certainly should be built to conform to the recognized standards as a protection to investors and to the community."

"Several instances of unlicensed persons giving architectural services were brought before the chapter and will be referred to the state department of registration of architects for action. The public is entitled to, and should demand the protection of their interests afforded by the guarantees of the examining board, when it grants an architect's license to a properly qualified architect."

RECEPTACLE FOR MAIL IS REQUIRED

Receptacles for mail must be provided by patrons desiring mail deliveries, was announced in the Postal Bulletin dated August 15, which has been received here by Postmaster Rufus A. Garner.

The announcement follows: "Mail receptacles save the carriers' time and hasten deliveries. It is therefore our desire to have a suitable receptacle of some character at every residence and if possible at business houses."

"The absence of a mail receptacle not only tends to inconvenience the patron, but unquestionably results in inferior service through delaying the carrier on his route."

"In the circumstances carrier delivery service should not be extended to any new dwelling not equipped with a suitable receptacle."

"When a patron changes his residence he will be required to provide a receptacle at his new address before being accorded delivery service."
